START FREIGHT CLAIM AGENCY

Besides this work, Mr. Lisenby will look after freight rate matters for the Chamber of Commerce, and will soon have a complete file of freight charges on all articles and items shipped into Dothan.

The past experience of Mr. Lisenby particularly fits him for this class of work as he has been brought in touch with many railroad officials and has had opportunities of studying conditions relative to freight questions.

NO BOOST FOR MORALS

Dothan Eagle: There has been special efforts made to boost Dothan through her loyal papers, and sending circulars throughout the country. I have not seen one line boosting the morals and city government. Are they ashamed of present conditions which exist? What effort is being made to correct same?

Homeseekers will seek first a moral city in which to rear and educate their children. "Publicity is the ruination of scoundrels, and the making of honest men."

By their fruits ye shall know them.

Enough Talk, Now Act

(From Atlanta Constitution.)

Under normal conditions the cotton marketing season would today be swinging into a lusty beginning. The crisis in Europe, which has lost its novelty, demands emergency measures. These measures have been long been speciously promised by the politicians at Washington.

It is time to stop wind-jamming and get busy!

A whirlwind of talk has spread from the capital to the four quarters of the country. The impression was given out that all the cotton farmer had to do was to sit steady in the boat, pin a child-like and bland faith in his congressmen and senators and all would be well.

The farmers of the south are tired of being fed on this particular variety of "bunk." Promises are not legal tender. They will not make cotton collateral. They will not pay debts. They will not ease the tension that is gradually bound to spread over the south unless tangible relief is forthcoming and forthcoming at once.

The Washington politicians are jawing and sidestepping while the farmer constituents for whom they profess so deathless an affection are grappling unaided with a titanic to get busy!

Here is actually the greatest problem facing the southern farmer since reconstruction: the greatest, we might say with conservatism, in all history, since at no previous period have all the markets of the world been closed down.

We have been officially put on notice by the controller of the currency that more than $100,000,000 is available as the south's part of the currency authorized by the Aldrich-Vreeland act.

Where is it and why is it not getting busy?

Cotton is coming in and much of it is being sacrificed.

If even a part of the amount of cotton available for moving the crop was put to that use the business situation would brighten in every part of the cotton belt and its effect would be felt throughout the country.

We have had a surplus of talk! It is time to act!

If there is anything in the much-vaunted Aldrich-Vreeland emergency currency there never was a better time for it to be put to use than now. The people have had enough of talk and enough of promises! It's time for somebody in Washington grappling unaided with a titanic to get busy!

Most self-sacrifice is for the purpose of self-indulgence later on.

Half the world doesn't know what the other half is fighting about.

The war so far seems to have been nothing but a claimers' contest.

Taken prisoners by the enemy is the way the school boys will feel about it next Monday.

Perch talk: "I like winter better than summer," said a fagged out looking little woman as she rocked back and forth on a North Third street porch last night. "Oh, I don't. I like summer a lot better," exclaimed a willowy looking girl who looked as crisp and fresh as a flower after a shower. "Maybe YOU do with nothing to do, but do you know we have not been alone in this house since the 28th of June. It has been company, company, COMPANY until I am about wild. . . . "Why, Mamma," exclaimed the willowy looking girl, in a shocked voice. "Don't 'O Mamma me,'" snapped the fagged out looking woman rocking so hard she almost went over. "Last night your father did not go to sleep until after midnight, because those girls visiting you sat on this porch, and squealed and giggled while entertaining some boys. Your father has not had a night's rest this summer. We can't get a girl, because our name is up on account of so much company. The grocery bills are so big I do not know how your poor father will ever get them paid, and with those strange girls and boys traipsing through my house handling my things, and taking possession of everything, from the bath tub to the most comfortable chairs on the porch, I am nearly crazy." "Why Mamma," "Do not say 'Why Mamma' to me again. If it had not been for company the European nations would not be at war. I, for one, do not blame the assassin who killed the archduke and archduchess of Austria; they went visiting where they were not wanted, and if there were a few more visitors killed like cotton, and one of cats.

would be more endurable for the rest of us," concluded the fagged out looking woman as she flew into the house, slamming the screen door after her.—Athens Globe.

SCHOOLS OPEN MONDAY.

The Dothan City Schools open Monday. At no time during the past few years have the schools opened up under such conditions. At this time money is pretty tight, but when counting over the list of things we may be able to economize on, it isn't wise to count on cutting out the schools. It isn't economy to keep the boy or girl out of school on the ground that money is hard to get just now. The boys wouldn't find profitable work just now, if they were out, unless they went to the cotton patch for a few days. Then, if they are not in school, or employed, they are in a bad way. All parents should strain a point, and put their children in school, for protection.

The present tightness will not last long. It will loosen up, and business will get back normal, or enough so, that we will not suffer.

It is very important that the schools be not crippled. The only thing to do is to economize in some other place, and put the children in school Monday morning when school opens.

NOT EFFECTED BY WARS.

The Alabama yam crop isn't effected by wars. They are retailing in Dothan for $1.75 a bushel. There is big money in growing sweet potatoes at 50c a bushel, and one big farmer near Dothan says, that he can make more money growing sweet potatoes at 25c per bushel, loaded on cars in Dothan, than he could make out of 12c cotton.

We all planted and cultivated cotton this year, with the expectation of getting 12c or more for it. Some of us made debts with the expectation of paying them with cotton at about that price. The difference in 12c cotton, and 7c cotton is the surplus that our farmers might have had. In other words, when they spend 7c per pound of their cotton, they must quit, now, whereas, they would have had 5c a pound to splurge on, had it brought what it was planted for.

A great meeting of merchants and cotton planters the other day met in New Orleans, and passed out the information that it cost us 12c a pound to grow cotton. That is a matter of guess work, largely, for when it formerly sold for 5 and 6c a pound, we heard farmers say it cost them at least 8c a pound to grow it, but they kept growing it. They were just as eager then to grow it as they were this year, and as they will be next year.

Well, who knows, but that the European war, and the boll weevil, will, in time, be a benefit to the cotton states?

If the war hadn't got us, the boll weevil would, so the war may serve to prepare us for the weevil. We may begin to make more sweet potatoes, to be sold, say, on an average of 75c a bushel, throughout the season. And so long as people live and want something good to eat, they are going to require sweet potatoes, and syrup made from sugar cane. No pest has attacked those two things yet, and the war hasn't effected the price. If anything, the prices will go a little higher.

Show us a farmer who has five acres planted in sweet potatoes this year, and we will show you a man who isn't worried about the war, or the price of cotton, for some are now claiming from 200 to 400 bushels of potatoes to the acre. They will not more than 50c a bushel, and you can't beat that with two crops of

THE DOTHAN EAGLE

WILL NEED NO TELLING.
The farmer will not have to be told not to plant too much cotton another year when he sells this crop for half what he thought he would get for it. Probably we have to have a little jab in the side to wake us on every fifteen or twenty years. We would get beside ourselves if we didn't.

Although this section has known that the boll weevil was advancing on us from the west, still you will find very few farmers who made any preparations for the weevil. So long as they could get 12 or 15c for cotton, and good crops every year, it was a hard matter to talk other crops to them. Now, that the price of cotton has been riddled, and the outlook in the future uncertain, it will not take much talking to get the farmer to plant something else, and he will do it now.

Just suppose we were a grain-growing section, like the northwest? We would be rolling in prosperity and buying new six-cylinders like those farmers, because they planted $1 wheat, or 75c wheat, and woke up the other day and found that it had begun to climb in price, and there is no telling what it will bring. Even a fighting country has to eat. It is more important that an army eat, and the folks back home, than it is for them to wear clothes, and when you make feed stuff, the world buys it, even though the world be at war.

The city of Birmingham is wanting to buy a water works. All modern towns, like Dothan, start off by owning these utilities, and then you

The Rivals.
It was at Nice. Two English girls are standing at the foot of a hotel staircase roaring with laughter. "For pity's sake, Mabel, don't!" said one of the matrons who were with them. "They'll take you for one of those horrid American girls." An American girl happened to be standing at the head of the stairs and quietly observed: "I guess not, with those awfully big feet!"

Paris, A City Ill at Ease

By GEORGE DU FRESNE.
(Star Correspondent of the International News Service.)

Paris, Sept. 4.—Like a lovely woman shorn of her tresses, Paris today stands alone, a city without suburbs. Gone are the little villages where lived some of the city's laboring people. Gone are the houses and barns of the market gardeners. Gone, too, are some of the handsome villas, the country homes of well-to-do Parisians.

The military wreckers today had finished their work of razing all the environs of Paris and the capital has a distinctly "bob-tailed" look. The suburbs were demolished against the dreaded but deprecated contingency that the Germans might invest Paris. It was deemed necessary by the war office, now in supreme control, that the country for many miles around Paris be cleared of houses, in order that the forts defending the capital might have uninterrupted range and also that the enemy might have no shelter to aid their advance.

In order to raze homes, surrendering without compensation the fruits of their years of toil was perhaps the first thing that brought to Frenchmen of the younger generation a realization of all that war and martial law means. The survivors of 1870 know all about confiscation and siege and destruction of property but younger Parisians perhaps did not fully comprehend the situation until they heard the explosion that tore down the beautiful and picturesque suburbs of Paris and saw homes made good by the board.

But there was little complaint and lamentation heard as the result of the destruction of the suburbs. Save for the tears of some old women, weeping for the loss of the homes and their "luxes and penates" there was no protest. Throughout her history, France has been a military nation and Frenchmen have for generations been taught to accept the fortunes of war.

It is the youth of the country who are learning new things now. At first the war was more or less of a frolic, intermixed with bitter denunciations of Germany. The gathering of troops, their departure amid the waving of flags and ringing of cheers seemed like a holiday occasion. Then came the shortage of money. That carried to the consciousness of the people that they were up against a serious situation.

And then came martial law. Its rigid provisions convinced even the most buoyant and volatile that war was real that in its dire effects it touched the whole people, women and children as well as fighting men. The meanness of the Parisians has been increased of late by the performances of German aviators who have flown over the city and dropped bombs. True, the missiles have done little damage, only a few persons being wounded and scattering buildings damaged. Most of the bombs have failed to explode. But the fact that death and destruction threatens them out of the very air, naturally makes the people nervous and anxious.

The fortifications of Paris and their ability to resist a siege are receiving careful attention these days while the city's detailed defenses are surrounded with secrecy by the military authorities yet their general character and formidable strength are well known. These fortifications consist of three distinct circles, sweeping around the city: first the solid wall of masonry, 18 feet high, extending for twenty-two miles around the old section of Paris; second the system of seventeen detached forts, arranged at intervals, two miles beyond the wall and making a circuit of the city thirty-four miles long; and third, an outer circle of forts, seventy-five miles long on the heights commanding the valley of the Seine.

Each of these circles of masonry and steel is a complete defense in itself, the forts being linked together with redoubts, bastion and glacis, which permit a cross-fire against approach from any direction. The magnitude of the system is shown by its area, which exceeds 400 square miles.

The walls around Paris and the several detached forts two miles outside were built by Louis Philippe. They withstood the siege of 1870 and the outer forts have since been greatly strengthened and equipped with modern guns by General Joffre, the French Generalissimo in the present war. The third line of forts on the hills are of modern construction equipped with the most powerful guns.

The inner walls about Paris surround the city proper. Outside are the suburbs, extending for many miles. The outer forts are dotted among the suburbs, and it is this section of outer Paris that has been cleared of all buildings.

SPORTING NEWS

By FRANK G. MENKE.
New York, Sept. 4.—Included in many other laughable remarks uttered by Ban Johnson was a recent one in which he declared that all the teams in the American League are putting up a major league article of baseball.

Some hard lot games are superior in quality to some of the games in which the Naps and Yanks have figured. The New York and Clevelanders, at times have committed every possible baseball crime with the exception of murdering the umpire. Instead of calling a game between the Naps and Yanks a ball game they ought to call it a "howl" game. It's enough to bring on the weeps to see those two gangs of alleged ball players wallowing around a ball field and kidding themselves into believing that they are going through the motions of a real ball player.

In every league there must be two teams, as a matter of course. But just because two teams happen to be fighting it out for the cellar championship is no reason why the game should abound with wild pitching, wild heaves, catches, wild ones by the outfielders, erratic fielding, a succession of "home plays" and the "I-don't-care" spirit.

The games of the Naps and Yanks staged in New York recently were little better than farces. The players went at their chores as tho they didn't care just how they did them. They kept up that spirit throughout. Even though these two teams do not stack up like first class productions they, at least, could try to play baseball to the best of their powers. The public, as we understand the situation, pays its money to see ball players play baseball. When it wants to see eccentric comedians it goes to a theatre.

Ban Johnson might take a look now and then at the Yanks and Naps in action. Probably, like the majority of fans who have seen them, he would change his views about their being first class ball clubs.

Ed Barrow, president of the International League, continues to insist that every league must cut the players' salaries, but no one is paying any attention to him. Instead of cutting salaries the various leagues continue to boost them. The major and minor leagues under the protection of Organized Baseball are still holding out huge purses to the noxie.

The writers who are closest to the powers in Organized baseball, and therefore most unfriendly toward the Federal League are asking President Gilmore what he's going to do with the players whose places will be taken next year by the men Gilmore claims to have signed up secretly for the Feds.

They point out how terribly cruel, unfair, unkind and traitorous it will be of Gilmore to release the players who haven't made good.

Doesn't Gilmore owe these fellows something? ask these writers. "They went to the Feds a title first call. They have remained loyal to the Feds to the end of the first call. There seems nothing wrong in Gilmore's plan to release the players who haven't made good. They have been paid for their services. They knew when they went to the Feds they would have to take a chance with the rest. And, while with the Feds, they have been paid well for their service. Most of them have drawn more from the Federal exchequer in one year than they would have drawn in Organized baseball in two or three years."

THE MIX OF UNIMMION.
It isn't the thing you do, dear,
It's the thing you leave undone
Which gives you a bit of heartache
At the setting of the sun.
The tender word forgotten,
The letter you did not write,
The flower you might have sent, dear,
Are your haunting ghosts tonight.
The stone you might have lifted
Out of a brother's way,
The bit of heartsome counsel
You were hurried too much to say
The loving touch of hand, dear,
The gentle and winsome tone,
That you had not time nor thought
For
With troubles enough of your OWN.
These little acts of kindness,
So easily out of mind,
These chances to be angels
Which even mortals find,
They come in night and silence,
Back still reproachful wrath
When hope is faint and flagging,
And a light has dropped on faith.
For life is all too short, dear,
And sorrow is all too great,
To suffer our slow compassion
That tarries until too late
And it's not the thing you do, dear,
It's the thing you leave undone,
Which gives you the bitter heart
ache
At the setting of the sun.

AUTOMOBILE WRECK VICTIM IS SELMAN
Selma, Ala.—Edward Cothran was brought to this city early today suffering from injuries sustained in an automobile accident on a country road last night. He sustained a broken collar bone and severe bruises and cuts about the body and face. Two other occupants of the machine were also injured.
According to the story of Cothran he attempted to drive his car out of the road to let a wagon pass, when the machine overturned down a 15-foot embankment into a ditch. The three occupants were pinned underneath the car and lay there for half an hour before being removed.

Mr. Cothran is a brother of Mrs. Felix Walker of this city.

ONLY SURE CORN CURE EVER KNOWN

"Get-it" the New Way, 2 Drops Do It.

To endure the pain and tortures caused by a little thing like a corn is ridiculous, simply because it is unnecessary. The new pain corn cure, "GETS-IT" is the first one ever known to remove corns without fail. Without pain and without trouble. This is why it is the biggest selling corn cure in existence today. It is now used by millions, because it does away with sticky tape, with plasters and cotton rings that shift their position and press down onto the corn with salves that "raw up" the toe, with "harnessed" that cause pressure and pain, with knives, razors and files, clawing and pulling at a corn.

"GETS-IT" is applied in two seconds. Two drops applied with the glass rod do the work. Pain goes, the corn shrivels, vanishes. Accept no substitute. Try it on any corn, wart, callus or bunion tonight.

"GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago. N. H. McCallum, adv.

Mrs. Weldon Thompson and child, who have been the guests of Mrs. W. J. Brunson have returned to their home in Enterprise.

English Prejudices Against Corn.
Maize has long been grown in England as a forage crop for cattle and horses—but this is not sugar corn—and the average Briton has not yet overcome his prejudice against eating horse feed. Yet English cattle and English horses have an enviable reputation in parts of the world outside of England, and it may be that the Englishman will take a leaf out of his horse book.

Daily Thought.
True happiness consists not in the multitude of friends, but in their worth and choice.—Ben Jonson.

Poor Chances for Millenium.
If the millenium doesn't show up until a mother admits that her own children are naughty and those next door are angels it will never arrive.

Encourage Children to Play.
Play gives joy, freedom, contentment and occupation. A child who plays thoroughly, with perseverance and determination, will be thorough and persevering in life. Children are full of imagination, which finds expression in their games and play. A child's world is very real. Blocks, balls, water colors, scrap books, beads, spoons or garden tools have a significance for him.

GREW A HOUSE

A Tree in Germany That is a Remarkable Work of Art.

On the bank of the river Oder, in Ratibor, in Silesia, Germany, there grows a maple tree which is one of the most remarkable works of art in existence, for though a tree, and to that extent a natural object, it has been trained, twisted and cut until it has become more like a house than a tree.

The tree is more than a hundred years old, and through the greater part of this time the work of cutting and twisting has been going on. The trunk rises from the ground much like that of any other tree, but a flight of steps leads to the first level, where the branches have been gradually woven together until a firm and leafy floor has been made.

Above this is a second floor smaller in diameter and formed in the same way. Around each floor the branches have been woven into solid walls, making two circular rooms. Each of these rooms is lighted by eight windows cut through the walls of branches and foliage.

Below the first floor, at the level of the second and at the top of the tree the branches have been allowed to grow out naturally, while the intermediate walls and the edges of the window openings are kept closely trimmed.

These tree rooms are occasionally used as sleeping apartments in summer. The old tree is in a healthy condition and promises to remain as a curiosity of Ratibor for many years.—Harper's.

The Sandbow.

The unusual optical phenomenon of a bow produced by the sun shining not on raindrops, but on particles of sand suspended in the air by wind, has been witnessed over a part of the Great Salt Lake. The colors were very brilliant, and there was a secondary bow visible. The main bow was fully double the width of an ordinary rainbow. Only a segment of it was seen. The sand was colitic, consisting of calcareous spherules of fairly uniform size, ranging between the limits of No. 8 and No. 10 shot. It had been claimed that the production of the bow must be due to reflection from the outer surfaces of the spherules and that it cannot be explained on the principle of refraction and total reflection, generally applied to the explanation of the rainbow.

Surely.

"Did you ever notice," said Mrs. N. Peck, "that about half of the pictures in the photographers' windows are of bridal couples? I wonder why they always rush off to a photographer's so soon?" "I fancy the husband is responsible for it," said Mr. Peck. "He realizes that it is about his last chance to ever look pleasant."

All Alike.

A Glasgow school teacher was reviewing the assembled ranks preparatory to marching them to their classes the other morning. As he walked up and down the lines he noticed one boy whose boots had not been blacked, and who was standing slightly in front of the others. Whirling to shame him into methods of neatness, the teacher exclaimed: "The boy with the dirty boots, step back into line." And straightaway (says the Glasgow News) the whole line shuffled back a pace.

Evolution.

If the theory of evolution "has been overthrown" the fact is not generally known. So far from being "overthrown" the theory is stronger today, say the leading scientists, than it ever was. Indeed, so these scientists inform us, the theory of evolution is now accepted by the faculties of the great learned institutions of the world and is taught as part of the general education.—Chicago Examiner.

Some Famous Italians.

Volta and Galvani made great contributions to the science of electricity, but Galvani was not a scientist. His energies all ran in the direction of battle for the social and political emancipation of humanity, especially of his own countrymen. If you have not already done so you should read the life of Galvani—the most popular name in the history of modern Italy.—Chicago Examiner.

Black Men in the World.

Africa is the second largest continent in the world. There are perhaps 180,000,000 people, of whom, while 50,000,000 are Mohammedans, not over 1,000,000 are Christians. Every tenth man in the United States is a black man. Every seventh man in the world is a black man.

SCHOOL CHILDREN'S EYES.

There is no disputing the fact that many children who are naturally bright are backward at school because of poor eyes. Many parents fail to discover why it is that their children hate to study. Poor eyesight is the cause in most cases. Every child attending school should have its eyes examined before. The long months of work would become shorter to those with weak eyes if they were given the proper glasses. Dr. Masrow invites parents to bring their children for examination. He guarantees his work. His patients must see perfectly or his work is not complete. His examinations are thorough and in the case of the children he can determine the glasses they need without subjecting them to a round of questions they cannot answer.

By bringing the children to him you get the benefit of his 22 years experience in examining eyes and fitting glasses only. Why take chances with the inexperienced and those who make this as a side line? Dr. Masrow can be seen every day in his office at 111 E. Main over Cash Drug Store.

Thought Gorilla a Myth.

It is a strange fact of natural history that the gorilla was unknown to science until the middle of the last century, when there was a migration of the animals from the interior of Africa towards the coast, probably in quest of food. The first scientific investigation of the great ape was made by an American missionary, Rev. Leighton Wilson. He was met with jeers that "there ain't no such animal," until, towards the close of 1846, he obtained a skull and sent it to the Boston Museum of Natural History.

Something Like Snobbery.

The Montreal Gazette notes that a college woman who has been investigating sociological conditions in New York "was surprised to find that the waitresses in a cheap restaurant where she worked for a while incognito were honest and kindly and happy." The Gazette wonders at her "surprise," and asks: "Does a person to be decent and good have to be a sociologist of independent means?"

Knew His Colleagues.

Two Manhattan physicians were enjoying the breeze from the front seat on the "hurricane deck" of a River-side Drive bus one afternoon, when part of their conversation was overheard. It ran like this: "I performed an operation for appendicitis on the wife of a millionaire yesterday," said the stouter of the pair. "Yes," said the other. "What was she suffering from?"

Mildew Stains.

Mildew stains are sometimes a source of great trouble, and are difficult to remove unless you know just the right way. Rub a little soap over the mildew spots, and on top of this a little chalk and lemon juice. If the garment is then put out in the sun for a couple of hours and afterwards washed in the usual way the spots will disappear.

Keeping Glue in Condition.

The family bottle of glue generally becomes a great nuisance and of little use after it has been opened for a few days. It becomes hardened and impossible to use. It may be softened by heat or by adding a teaspoonful or more of vinegar to the bottle, and allowing it to stand for a few minutes. If the bottle can be kept in a warm place all of the time it will stay soft as long as there is any left.

Hasty Sightseeing.

Europeans are wont to talk of Americans who rush through Europe with a guide book in one hand and a railroad timetable in the other, but an Englishman overheard on a New York bus the other day was in a class by himself for speed. "I've been up to the Metropolitan museum," he volunteered to a seatmate. "Bally fine place, but big. Took me an hour to see everything in it."

Mason and Dixon's Line.

For a long time there was a bitter dispute between Pennsylvania and Maryland as to the boundary line between them. The dispute was settled by two surveyors, Mason and Dixon, who, in 1763, ran the line as it now is between the two states. "Mason and Dixon's Line"—the southern boundary of Pennsylvania—afterward became famous as the division between freedom and slavery.

The above illustrations give you some idea of how the Famous Bryne Simplified Shorthand compares with the Graham, Pitman and Gregg.

Note in writing the twenty-five words there are eighty-four necessary strokes in the Graham, one hundred, ten in the Pitman, one hundred-fifty in the Gregg and only fifty in the Bryne.

The Graham column is taken from a page of the Graham Dictionary, and the Pitman column from the Pitman Dictionary. Every word in the Gregg column has been verified with the Dictionary of over 700 words, so no one can say that the comparison of the Bryne Simplified with the other three systems is not a fair one, as these words were selected by the authors of the other systems.

The Gregg text book with its 163 pages is so incomplete until it is compelled to use hundreds of word signs, for to follow their rules and form the outline, you would have to use a larger tablet and take your pencil in both hands.

Many expert stenographers are using these old long complicated systems, but they will tell you it is necessary to use their shorthand every day or they will forget it. Where it is once forgotten it requires months to review, while with the Bryne if you were to forget every rule and every word sign, you could review the entire text book in a day and night and have it fresh on your mind. With the other systems you must learn hundreds of rules and their exceptions and word signs without end; with the Bryne you have only thirteen rules, no exceptions, the ten word signs and only twenty-seven pages in the whole text book. With this condensed system we write legibly, every word in the English language, employing only thirteen word signs and they are not absolutely necessary.

Life's too short, business too urgent, and time too valuable to squander month after month mastering principles only to be forgotten. Especially is this true now when it is possible to obtain a system which can be mastered within from 10 to 15 days and allow you to begin earning long before the slow poke bunch are half through learning. Many reputable schools that do not care to mislead their students, actually advertise shorthand by the year.

Would you waste the time necessary if you did not have to study to get it?

If you want the best you will demand the BRYNE.
